You present as an incredibly warm, confident, and open individual, but your verbal delivery doesn't yet match the power of your non-verbal presence. Your body language and facial expressions signal high confidence and approachability, making you instantly likeable. However, a high ratio of filler words and hesitant language significantly undermines your authority, creating a disconnect between how you look and how you sound.

You come across as enthusiastic, friendly, and passionate, especially about your topic. Your high smile ratio (50%) and perfectly open posture create a welcoming and engaging aura that naturally draws people in.

⚡ COACH'S #1 PRIORITY FOR YOU

You must eradicate filler words and hesitant phrasing to make your verbal intelligence as powerful as your world-class body language.

📊 3-Layer Communication Analysis

Verbal Intelligence

Clarity · Tone · Persuasion · Structure

62/100

Your speaking pace is excellent and easy to follow, but your message is diluted by verbal crutches. A high filler word ratio of 6.2% and a critically low confident language score of 1% make you sound hesitant and less credible than you should.

✓ WHAT WORKED

- ✓ Your speaking pace of 4.1 syllables/second is ideal, allowing listeners to easily process your ideas without feeling rushed or bored.
- ✓ Your vocabulary richness (0.58) is solid, indicating you have the words to express your ideas effectively.

✗ WHAT DIDN'T

- ✗ The filler word ratio of 6.2% is significantly high, acting as static that disrupts the clarity of your message.
- ✗ An extremely low confident language ratio (1%) suggests you rely on hedging and uncertainty, which undermines your expertise and conviction.
- ✗ Your mean pitch of 388 Hz is quite high and stable, which can verge on monotone and reduce vocal engagement over time.

→ IMPROVEMENTS

- Practice the 'Power Pause'. When you feel a filler word coming, stop and take a one-second silent breath. This adds weight to your words and eliminates the filler.
- Actively script and rehearse key phrases for your pitch using declarative language. Swap 'I think we could...' with 'We will...' or 'Our vision is...'

will... or Our vision is...

→ Practice vocal modulation. Record yourself reading a paragraph and consciously vary your pitch, lowering it for important points and raising it for exciting ones.
